

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A plasma display panel is provided with a transparent substrate, and scanning electrodes and sustaining electrodes
5 formed on the transparent substrate extending in a first direction. An area of the scanning electrode is smaller than an area of the sustaining electrode in each of display cells. The widths of the scanning electrode and the sustaining electrode in a second direction crossing the 10 first direction are substantially equal to each other.